Dear Miss Schiller,

It was very kind of you to telephone The West Australian and warn that Skylab could be an unwanted visitor here.

In terms of space travel you were uncomfortably close to the mark. You will see from the attached clippings that we published a story about you only a day before Skylab came hurtling down in the South-East of Western Australia, some of it less than 400 miles from Perth.

But, as you know, nobody was hurt and there was no harm done. Indeed, Western Australia, celebrating the 150th anniversary of white settlement in its part of the world, was glad to have the international publicity that Skylab brought with it. It even outpointed the Miss Universe contest, which was on at the time in Perth.

I thoroughly enjoyed reading your letter about your dream. Thank you, too, for the picture of you.

Best wishes,

Malcolm C Uren
Editor.

P.S. Sorry we mis-spelt your name in print.
